

Additional World Information

Social class and economic standing are significant factors on Doyfala Island. The coffee bean is king, and since the St. Andrews family monopolizes that industry, they bully everyone. They control the Doyfala Constabulary Police with bribes and payoffs. The Hamiltons are the one family who stands up against their immoral acts. They have just as much money as the St. Andrews, but they achieved wealth by living off the land and offering sustainable resources to the island natives.

Medicine/Magic: Louella Hamilton owns an apothecary in the middle of town, which serves as a pharmacy and safe haven. She uses the herbs, flowers, and fruit grown on her farm to make medicines. In addition, she has a generations-old grimoire that lists magical chants, potions, and prayers to ward off evil and misfortune. Unfortunately, her children and grandchildren still manage to meet with adversity.

Geography/Fauna/Flora: Doyfala island has beautiful black sand beaches with a dark purple tint. The purple hue is because of the ungu mineral found in the soil. The island's entire ecosystem is affected by the mineral. The plants grow in the ungu soil and have a lavender glow, especially at night in the jungle. The land and water animals eat the vegetation, and they, too, glow purple. The mineral is organic and not harmful to humans.
